Provincial Park!*

William A. Switzer Provincial Park

What is a Management Plan?

A park management plan is a road map to provide direction for the future management of the park and to ensure that use of the park occurs in a manner that is consistent with the legislation, regulations and policies.

Management plans outline how the natural and cultural heritage of the park will be protected, as well as describing the type and extent of outdoor recreation and tourism opportunities, facilities and services that are appropriate to ensure that visitors enjoy a quality visit.

The plan also describes the interpretive and environmental education programs and facilities that will be provided to enable visitors to explore and reconnect with nature!

What is special about William A. Switzer Provincial Park?

William A. Switzer Provincial Park is located 25 km northwest of Hinton and 280 km west of Edmonton. First established in 1958 as Entrance Provincial Park, renamed as William A. Switzer Provincial Park in 1974, and further expanded in 2000, this park is one of the earliest designated parks in Alberta.

Five campgrounds and three group-use areas contain over 200 camping spots. Recreational activities include camping, canoeing and boating, fishing, swimming, bird watching, picnicking, as well as hiking, mountain biking, and cross-country skiing on over eighty kilometres of trails at the Athabasca Nordic Centre and throughout the park.

The park is a significant natural heritage site providing provincial representation of the upper and lower foothills, high biological diversity, and important cultural heritage sites. The park is also a gateway to the northern Rockies, with the newly renovated visitor centre serving as a hub connecting the public to the surrounding ecology and other parks in the areas.

We need your ideas!

Alberta Tourism, Parks and Recreation is preparing a management plan for William A. Switzer Provincial Park. The plan will direct how William A. Switzer Provincial Park will be protected and managed in future years.

We want your ideas for the park so we can ensure appropriate management of the recreational, natural and cultural values that make the park special to local communities and visitors from afar.
